

'He Sleeps Tonight... Soldier Home From War'

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Unknown Soldier of World War I was buried in Washington, Nov. 11, 1921. An account of that service, written by Mr. L. Simpson of The Associated Press, won the Pulitzer Prize and became one of the classics of journalism. It is reproduced, in major portion, at the suggestion of a newspaper editor who wrote that the story was written years before he was born and he thought a new generation should be exposed to it this Memorial Day.

WASHINGTON—Nov. 11, 1921
— By The Associated Press —
Under the wide and starry skies of his own homeland America's unknown dead from France sleeps tonight, a soldier home from the wars.

Alone, he lies in the narrow cell of stone that guards his body; but his soul has entered into the spirit that is America. Wherever liberty is held close in men's hearts, the honor and the glory and the pledge of high endeavor poured out over this nameless one of fame, will be told and sung by Americans for all time.

Scrolled across the marble arch of the memorial raised to American soldier and sailor dead, everywhere, which stands like a monument behind his tomb, runs this legend: "We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain."

WORDS OF LINCOLN

The words were spoken by the martyred Lincoln over the dead at Gettysburg. And today with voice strong with determination and ringing with deep emotion, another president echoed that resolve over the coffin of the soldier who died for the flag in France.

Great men in the world's affairs heard that high purpose reiterated by the man who stands at the head of the American people. Tomorrow they will gather in the city that stands almost in the shadow of the new American shrine of liberty dedicated today. They will talk of peace; and of the curbing of the havoc of war.

They will speak of the war in France, that robbed this soldier of life and name and brought death to comrades of all nations by the hundreds of thousands. And in their ears when they meet must ring President Harding's declaration today beside that flag-wrapped, honor-laden bier: "There must be, there shall be, the commanding voice of a conscious civilization against armed warfare."

GUNS ROAR

All day long the nation poured out its heart in pride and glory for the nameless American. Before the first crash of the minute-guns roared its knell for the dead from the shadow of the Washington Monument, the people who claim him as their own were trooping out to do him honor. They lined the long road from the Capitol to the hillside where he sleeps tonight; they flowed like a tide over the slopes about his burial place. They choked the bridges that lead across the river to the fields of the brave, in which he is the last comer.

Soldiers, sailors and Marines — all played their part in the thrilling spectacle as the cortege rolled along. And just behind the casket, with its faded French flowers on the draped flag, walked the President, the chosen leader of a hundred million, in whose name he was chief mourner at his bier. Beside him strode the man under whom the fallen hero had lived and died in France, Gen. Pershing, wearing only the single medal of victory that every American soldier might wear as his only decoration.

Behind came the carriage in which came Woodrow Wilson, also stricken down by infirmities as he served in the highest place of the nation, just as the humble private riding in such state ahead had gone down before a shell or bullet. For that

Veterans Threaten To Boycott Hotel

Wounded GI's Snubbed By Hilton In Chicago

MUNDELEIN, Ill. (AP) — A threatened boycott of a Hilton hotel by veterans has arisen because a Hilton official shunted away a group of wounded veterans he feared might depress regular night-club patrons.

Andy Borg of Superior, Wis., president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, threatened Friday to withdraw the VFW's national convention from the New York Hilton Aug. 19-26 unless an apology is made.

The American Legion's national commander, L. Eldon James, who is in Europe, said he was "deeply distressed" to learn that the sacrifice on the part of our young men and women in Viet Nam might make them unwelcome anywhere in America."

Porter Parris, manager of the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago which features an ice skating show in its fashionable Boulevard Room, said Thursday he did not want a party of some 70 wounded veterans to attend the regular show because their presence might depress other patrons.

He offered to put on a special meal for 600 veterans. Residents of Mundelein, a suburb northwest of Chicago, sponsors of the servicemen's entertainment, declined the invitation.

At a news conference Friday, Parris said he had been misquoted, then said, "I consider this a public apology," but added later that he "would issue an apology only if necessary."

"This unfortunate incident has grown out of the fact that I was misquoted by the gentleman who called my office last Tuesday to make reservations at the Boulevard Room," Parris said.

"As I indicated to that gentleman over the telephone, we were willing at that time and we are still willing to provide the facilities of the Boulevard Room to these Viet Nam veterans at any time, provided the hotel is given time to make adequate arrangements to assure their comfort and enjoyment," he added.

The nearby Great Lakes Naval Hospital still had a party. They were taken to a movie and entertained at the Ivanhoe, a North Side restaurant. The party was organized by Mayor Paul Foss of Mundelein and Ralph Shields, a township tax assessor.

"I've never seen anything so fantastic as what those people in Mundelein did for us," said Henry Hartman, 21, a Marine corporal from Chicago. Hartman was not in Viet Nam. He landed in the Dominican Republic in 1965 with the 8th Marine Regiment.

"I didn't know about the hotel thing until this morning," he said. "I'll tell you this. It's a rotten job over there. No one likes to be wounded. People here care less until they are personally involved."

Cpl. Ed Anderson of Kansas City, Mo., wounded in the right leg, said, "The Hilton will never see my money."

Sgt. John Ross, 21, Bay City, Mich., a four-year Marine veteran, has been hospitalized six months since taking a bullet in his face.

Says U.S. Planning To Attack

Cuban Armed Forces Put On State Of Alert

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Friday night he is convinced the United States is planning "armed aggression" against Cuba and ordered a state of alert for Cuba's 100,000-man armed forces. In a communiqué read over radio and television, Castro accused Secretary of State Dean Rusk of "practically threatening us with war" over armed clashes between U.S. and Cuban forces along the perimeter of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo in southeastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos immediately called in the ambassadors of Communist countries and asked for volunteers "willing to aid Cuba against the threat of aggression by Yankee imperialism."

The ambassadors present included those of Communist China, the Soviet Union and North Viet Nam and the representative of the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. There was no report on the response to Dorticos' request.

GUANTANAMO SHOOTING

Castro said the U.S. Defense Department lied in claiming that six Cuban soldiers penetrated the U.S. base Monday and exchanged fire with American guards.

Rusk told a news conference Friday the United States had protested the incident and demanded that such actions stop.

A Defense Department spokesman said as far as is known no one was injured in the exchange of gunfire.

Castro said the Pentagon version "does not contain the slightest element of truth" and likened it to lies which he said "always precede the aggression of Yankee imperialists."

He denounced the "chiefs of Pentagon" as "a gang of reactionaries, bandits, criminals without scruples and cowards."

"Maybe by such improbable and false declarations they are trying to create psychological conditions to unleash an aggression against our country," he said.

CASTRO ANSWERS RUSK

Cuba will never "abandon custody of our territory, which is virtually what Rusk is demanding," Castro said. Instead, "What we will do immediately is put our revolutionary armed forces and all the people of Cuba in a state of alert."

He said the United States should not even bother to send a diplomatic note on such allegations because it would not be accepted.

Dr. King Will 'Tent' To Integrate Suburbs

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., says his drive to end Chicago slums will feature "tent-ins" in white suburbs to dramatize demands for open housing.

King said a demonstration June 26 will be followed by a summer of activity that will include the use of "tent-ins" in white areas to point up the need for open housing.

"We are inviting social disaster," Dr. King said, by "fostering a predominantly Negro central city ringed by all-white suburbs."

At a news conference Friday night, he outlined the last six months of behind-the-scenes preparation by his Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Now the time for nonviolent action has come," he said.

King said the drive will open with a rally and then a march on City Hall.

"We will fill Soldier Field, then march and present our demands to the city fathers," King said, adding that juvenile gang members will be invited to join the civil rights movement in Chicago.

King said he has conferred with leaders of nearly every Negro and white juvenile gang in the city in the past two weeks and is convinced some of them can be persuaded to "redirect their energy and goals to creative nonviolent ends."

"Although some may misinterpret this action," King said, "there is nothing more notable and sublime than to give a feeling of belonging to people who have been told they are nobodies and outcasts."

The movement's demands will be directed at employment, schools, welfare, health and housing, he said.

Flowers On New Graves

On this Memorial Day there will be more soldiers' graves to be strewed with flowers than there were a year ago. The war in Viet Nam has cost more than 1,000 American lives. That many young Americans are known to have been killed in action and there are also the missing who will not return.

The long list of the nation's hero dead continues to lengthen daily.

That is one way to state a sorrowful fact. It is inadequate. There is no form of words than can express the grief wrapped up in all these personal tragedies. Where is the phrase to describe the void left in one mother's heart at the loss of a son? Who can say it to make it felt? It is better not to try but to speak only in general terms.

It is better simply to recognize that great gifts have again been laid at the nation's altar.

Not only the nation's. The American people have fought other wars they did not think of as solely in their own interest. Americans can look at their nation's past and feel that no offering nobly made has gone for naught.

It is true that we could throw away much of what has been gained. We need to rededicate ourselves on this Memorial Day, as we honor these dead, but in a spirit of calm resolution.

Expense Account Coming Back

A noticeable difference between the English and the American income tax structure is in the rates and the determination of taxable income.

Great Britain imposes a rate considerably higher than its U.S. counterpart, but is more lenient than Uncle Sam in defining what is the taxable income. The English system has a most liberal interpretation of what is the cost of doing business. Across the pond, "expense account living" draws much less adverse preachment than it does on our side of the Atlantic.

The American version of what is deductible on the expense account began to move to the liberal side of the fence during World War II.

By way of trying to keep the cost of battle somewhere within limits and to remind the civilian population that it was better to shed from the pocketbook rather than from the veins, the government imposed a strict anti-inflation controls system. High personal taxes, an excess profits tax on corporations, re-negotiation of war contracts, price and wage controls were the tools employed.

This achieved a proportionately cheaper cost than World War I's free and easy spending, but it did not stop human ingenuity from figuring ways and means to get around those bonds.

The expense account, always a part of the Internal Revenue laws and regulations, began to receive a more active workout.

No one in government paid undue attention to it as a tax reduction scheme, although contractors on cost plus arrangements or fixed price contractors being run through the re-negotiation mill frequently had a rough coming from the government auditors.

This trend continued upward following the war's end to the point where eventually stories started to filter around that the boss was taking his secretary to conventions but leaving the little woman at home, all on the expense account.

In mid-1963 the then President Kennedy instructed the Internal Revenue people to re-write the book as one means of squeezing more tax dollars into the Washington till and to avoid the more unpopular method of hiking the basic rates.

The IRS version of the Presidential order raised hob for a while.

A lunch or dinner for a sales prospect dropped in its length and salubriousness; receipts for even a hat check tip came into vogue; the night club and posh restaurant operators viewed half empty establishments; and the entertainment world began to mutter what's wrong about bringing fun into the lives of others.

A survey by the Wall Street Journal reveals that the 1963-64 grim outlook is cheerier today.

Upon recovering from the initial shock, the business fraternity learned from its tax auditors that the IRS book had not been edited downward so drastically as first thought.

For the most part anything deductible before remains a scratch today. The only difference is that the taxpayer must have better records to prove what he claims. In a word, the previous drain on the patients' blood has been stemmed, and things are looking better these days.

The campaign had one salutary effect on business. This was a closer scrutiny of the swindle sheet by top management. The substitution of less expansive entertainment for the customer for the earlier open handed policy is contributing to a healthier profit and loss statement.

Even this is subject to a certain qualification.

The economy seat in an airplane became a widespread rule for executive travel. After all, the coach section of the ship gets to its destination just as quickly as the first class fare with its fringe benefits of more cocktails and movies.

As noted by the Journal this could be penny wise and pound foolish under certain conditions.

It quotes an unidentified advertising executive as boasting of breaking the firm's rule against the first class seat.

"I don't like to be cramped when I fly. The other day on a flight I sat next to a bank president who was interested in changing ad agencies. Our outfit signed him up," he informed the Journal.

Lose one way and win another might be the saga of the expense account.

Buymanship

When an industry starts urging its customers to learn how to spend less money on its products, that's news.

Buymanship, or the art of smart shopping, is recommended by the National Association of Food Chains as an antidote to the high cost of living.

The association says it is urging its 20,000 affiliated stores to help housewives learn how to get the most for their money. This was the first public statement from the food industry on the last year's steady rise in the U. S. Labor Department's consumer price index, popularly known as the cost-of-living index.

The rise is popularly blamed on food prices, an opinion the association would like to change.

It is true that many housewives tend to confuse their food cost with the amount they spend at the grocery store, not remembering that it includes detergents, light bulbs, tooth paste and many other non-food items.

Buymanship, as the chain stores would define it, is not the negative art of spending less money but the positive art of getting more for what is spent. The association's preliminary statement did not go into details about how to practice buymanship.

The association certainly will agree that one of the first steps is to read the grocery advertisements in the daily newspapers and take advantage of the specials at more than one store.

Hunger plagued India suffers from a lack of good farm land. Part of the northwest is a desert; central India forms a hilly, brush clad plateau. Only the coastal strips and the Ganges plain in the north offer level, arable acres, the National Geographic says.

Many birds like to bathe in fresh water or dust. This activity discourages vermin, but pleasure seems to be the birds' main motivation.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Editor,
The Herald-Press:

ENTANGLED

In his farewell address George Washington warned us to "be ware of foreign entanglements."

In a short editorial appearing in the U. S. News and World Report of May the editor asks this question, "Has America made too many promises?"

Following the query we read: "The manpower squeeze has prompted an investigation of the U.S. capacity to meet treaty commitments to 43 nations around the world." Senator John Stennis (D) of Mississippi said, "The Viet Nam war has drained off so much manpower that it is questionable whether other U.S. emergencies can be handled."

This same editorial again quotes the Senator as saying, "Attention has been called to material shortages and the siphoning of troops from Europe." Senator Stennis is Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee. The editorial states, "The Pentagon will assist in the investigation, which will concern itself with precise military commitments of the U.S. in all its alliances."

It appears that the words uttered by Papa George either fell on deaf ears or the foreign policies of the U.S. have been slowly undergoing a streamlining.

Every community in America seeks an answer to a moot question, it being, "What are the circumstances involved that prompted such commitments with so many nations? Are they decisions to pollute the world as a huge law enforcement body?"

The second query seems to fit into the picture, for we are not fighting a war but by every rule in the book we are performing a police function and killing young Americans by using the same motto used in 1914 to 1918, "making the world safe for democracy," or, at least making the attempt.

If these commitments are not to be construed as foreign entanglements, then Washington should prepare a brochure for "he who runs may read" consumers stating the facts so that the real reasons behind these commitments may be brought to light. Peace on earth is farther away now than it ever was before.

Is it possible that George was wrong in his philosophy, or are we assuming that our more modern way of life requires a revision of such old fashioned thinking?

Many of us wonder just why we are "going all out" as it were in Viet Nam when behind

Editor,

HE REALLY ISN'T DEAD

There are those who tell us, or so it's said, That all is chaos, that "God is dead," A state of confusion, such thinking brings, If this be true, then explain these things:

What causes the beauty of the rose, To unfurl with each summer's birth, And by what mystic power does it draw Its nourishment from within the earth, With crimson petals, wet with dew, That glistens on fresh morning sod, This miracle happens every year, Does this prove the death of God?

And explain the mourning dove's plaintive cry, And the dulcet notes that songbirds sing, And why does the earth after winter's sleep, Welcome the glories of a beautiful spring? Who formed the rainbow's glorious arch, That thrills all of us with delight, And who fashioned the silent majesty Of the star filled temple of the night?

Who put the power in the lightning flash, That comes crashing with a summer storm, And what Master Mind caused the blood to flow, In your veins to keep your body warm? From the burning desert's fiery heat, To the far horizon's most distant rim From the mountain's peak, to the ocean's shore, All of creation bears evidence of Him.

From the tiniest ant crawling over the ground, And the honey bee flying home to its hive, Every creature on earth seems to care for its young So how can one say God is no longer alive?

So open your eyes, and look about you, my friend,

And then explain, if you can, what you've said,

God may be resting, but there's one thing I know,

That all of Nature proclaims He's not dead!

READERS' RELATED QUESTIONS

Is there any characteristic cycle of ulcer pains?

Ulcer pains are hunger pains. That is why the pains sometimes occur in-between meals and in the middle of the night. For that is when the stomach contracts on its own emptiness.

The cyclic pattern of hunger pains may suggest an ulcer, but only a complete examination can find or deny it.

When are antacids used for stomach ulcers?

Antacids must only be used by direction of the physician. The antacids neutralize the stomach's hydrochloric acid which is exceedingly irritating to ulcers. In most instances antacids are taken about three quarters of an hour after meals. Each person's antacid needs must be satisfied in an individual manner.

Is the freezing method for ulcers still used?

The freezing technique for the treatment of ulcers has not been universally accepted by all physicians. Some are still enthusiastic about it while others feel that it should be used with extreme caution. While the method is still being studied, most physicians prefer to use the conventional forms of treatment.

BARODA BANK ROBBER GIVEN PRISON TERM

Reunion For Class Of Champs

1941 Graduates Of B.H. High To Meet July 30

Benton Harbor high school graduates of 1941 will rally July 30 for a 25-year salute to the class of champions.

The class earned its share of academic distinction, but the athletic accomplishments of that senior year of 1940-41 are unrivaled in the history of the Colfax school.

That glorious year produced state championships in football, basketball and track — a sweep which other notable Tiger teams have failed to duplicate. Many in the class of 294 members still reside in the community to watch their children go through Benton Harbor high schools. Others have dispersed throughout the nation and their only link with Benton Harbor high are pictures in the 1941 annual.

The committee in charge of the reunion is attempting to locate 83 members whose addresses are unknown to attend the big event at Holiday Inn. The reunion will feature an afternoon of golf, reception from 5 to 7, buffet dinner and dancing to close the evening.

General chairman of the affair is Harold Rau, assisted by Glenn Fraverd, Mrs. George Freier, Dr. Edward Atwood, Howard Brink, Mrs. Leroy Corteville, Dr. Stanley Mesirow, Mrs. Martin Peters, Mrs. J.C. Mason and Miss Mary Jane Culmine.

Persons with current information on the following class members are requested to contact Mrs. Peters, 140 Orchard Lane or Miss Culmine, 133 Kline street.

Poor Builders English Award

OFFICIALS at Gosnick Construction company on Pioce-stone road southeast of Benton Harbor had never seen such sloppy construction.

The site was poor, building materials were strung together in a haphazard manner, and worst of all, the building had eggs in it.

It was the first time a robin had ever built a nest in construction scaffolding at Gosnick, said Secretary-Treasurer Bill Simaz, so workmen were in bit of a quandary when they came for the scaffolding a week and a half ago.

But the scaffolding stays. It'll remain unmoved, though slated for use at a service station job in New Buffalo, until the property tenants get their pilot's license.

Will Inform Public On Zip Codes

Local Postmasters Tell Of Program

Steps are being taken by the Post Office Department to make zip code numbers more readily available to the mailing public, according to James Bowen and Robert McMullen, Benton Harbor and St. Joseph postmasters, respectively.

The postmasters said that nationwide polls have shown that nearly all Americans are familiar with the zip code system but that action is needed to make it easier, and more convenient for people to acquire zip codes of distance post offices.

Plans include publishing zip code maps in telephone directories, providing zip code information by telephone from post offices, and filling out lists of zip codes of frequently used addresses for postal patrons, McMullen and Bowen said.

According to the poll, about 50 per cent of postal patrons use the zip code and 40 per cent said the reason they didn't use the zip code was because they didn't know the numbers of post offices of the persons to whom they were writing.

Indefinite Sentence Up To 16 Years

Nearly $9,000 Taken In April At Inter-City Branch

GRAND RAPIDS — Nolan Clayton, Jr., 24, Hammond, La., who pleaded guilty to the April 18 robbery of Baroda branch of Inter-City Bank, was given an indeterminate prison sentence in U.S. District court Friday.

Federal District Judge Noel P. Fox ruled that the sentence was not to exceed 16 years in prison.

Clayton was charged with robbing the bank at gunpoint and then leading Michigan and Indiana law enforcement officers on a wild chase that ended when he crashed his sports car into a truck just north of South Bend.

WILD CHASE

Nolan was being chased by Niles City police when he went through a red light and crashed into a truck that was turning onto the highway in the South Bend suburb of Roseland. St. Joseph County Indiana Sheriff William Locks confiscated three bags of money containing nearly $9,000 and a .22 caliber pistol from Clayton's car. Clayton was taken to South Bend Memorial hospital for treatment of apparently minor injuries and then transferred to jail.

Federal agents took over the case and Clayton was taken to Grand Rapids, where he pleaded guilty to a bank robbery charge April 29.

Michigan state police said at the time of the robbery that Clayton was relatively familiar with southwestern Michigan, having worked in the area as a farm hand. However, he may have become confused after the robbery. Police said he apparently circled back through Baroda about 15 minutes after the robbery.

Reports Robbery

Pays For Ride He Didn't Get

James Coleman, 188 Charles street, Benton township, reported to township police Friday night that he was robbed of $37.50 by several men.

Coleman said he was hitchhiking to work when a car stopped to pick him up. The victim said he asked the driver how much he would charge to take him to Auto Specialties plant.

The price was set at $1.50, but when Coleman pulled out his money to pay the driver in advance, the men in the car grabbed the whole roll, $37.50, and sped away. Coleman told police. He thought there were three men in the car.

A 10-year-old Benton township boy was arrested at Thrift-T-Mart, 906 East Britain avenue, by township police Friday for allegedly shoplifting a package of pencils valued at 59 cents.

The boy was released to his parents pending action by juvenile authorities.

Veterans Tax Bill Isn't Dead Yet

LANSING (AP) — The veterans' property tax exemption bill, which was kicked back and forth by Democratic legislators and Gov. George Romney, is to receive one more kick next week. Rep. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, said he would move next Tuesday to have a veterans' exemption bill brought out of the House Taxation Committee for consideration on the House floor.

He conceded the odds were against him.

Romney told legislators last week that it was the final issue, kicked back and forth by for action to give veterans higher exemptions this year. Democrats replied that Romney, who vetoed two exemption measures, should have cooperated earlier.

House Speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, said Thursday Democrats had given up on the matter for this year because it was too late to put new exemptions on 1966 tax rolls.

Romney, who vetoed two exemption measures, should have cooperated earlier.

Hill, charged under a technicality, admitted he had been driving in violation of a restriction on his driver's license. His license restricted him to driving only one car. He was charged with driving a different car May 20 in Benton Harbor. Hill was released on bond pending sentencing.

All but one school district asked for more than the 9.05 allocation. The lone exception, Bainbridge Center district, asked for and was given 8.952.

Twelve school districts were given slightly more than 9.05 as townships which provide their funds did not take the full mill.
